! CHALLENGE

As the technology infrastructure provider of the Medicaid Management Information System (MMIS) for the Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) of South Carolina, Clemson University manages the claims of 1.2 million South Carolina constituents that enroll in Medicaid each fiscal year. Clemson also assists DHHS in retrieving and sharing constituent information with the federal government regarding incoming inquiries related to billing, coverage, claims processing and more. To manage such a high volume of data, Clemson needed a solution to discover and access constituent information quickly, and also ensure that all collected information complied with regulatory standards.

🎯 SOLUTION

Clemson selected ASG’s Content Services Platform (Mobius) for its ability to manage, capture and distribute large volumes of archived documents according to industry regulations and government mandates. ASG’s Content Services Platform integrated with Clemson’s mainframe repository, making it easy for Clemson to report information to DHHS to support their service. With simplified access for reporting, Clemson can discover and deliver data for DHHS to perform analytics and ad hoc reporting functions to serve their constituents in a timely manner. ASG’s Content Services Platform also delivers a secure repository with strict security and access controls, ensuring archived information complies with regulations and protects constituents’ Personal Health Information (PHI).
